You're in charge of designing a black cylindrical space capsule for a manned trip to the Moon. You need a volume you will be comfortable in, and you want the temperature to be cozy. What dimensions should your capsule be (assuming the entire surface is a uniform temperature), and how should it be oriented?