

This activity page is incomplete. The important content is the two Python files below, which I will use in class.

To start with, let's look at this python file. This is a Monte Carlo simulation of the Einstein model of a solid.

Now let's look at A second python file, which models two Einstein solids that are in contact with one another.