

Consider a system where two blocks with equal masses connected by springs are allowed to frictionlessly oscillate.

Starting with Newton's second law, write an equation that describes the configuration of the system as time evolves.

Use as your coordinates the displacements of each mass from their equilibrium positions.

